Radiology AI delivered by the workflow specialist

Looking to adopt AI?
We can help!

Artificial Intelligence (AI) has the potential to transform the delivery of healthcare, especially within radiology.

However, its successful adoption in this area is largely dependent on how well the technology integrates into the existing workflows of healthcare organisations.

As the leading provider of Radiology Information Systems to the NHS, our understanding of these existing workflows and our technical expertise provides organisations with a quick and practical route to AI adoption that:

Enhances radiology reporting capabilities, leading to improved workflows, improved efficiency, and better patient care

Supports management of the reporting process and aids clinical decision making, allowing expertise and time to be focused on priority cases

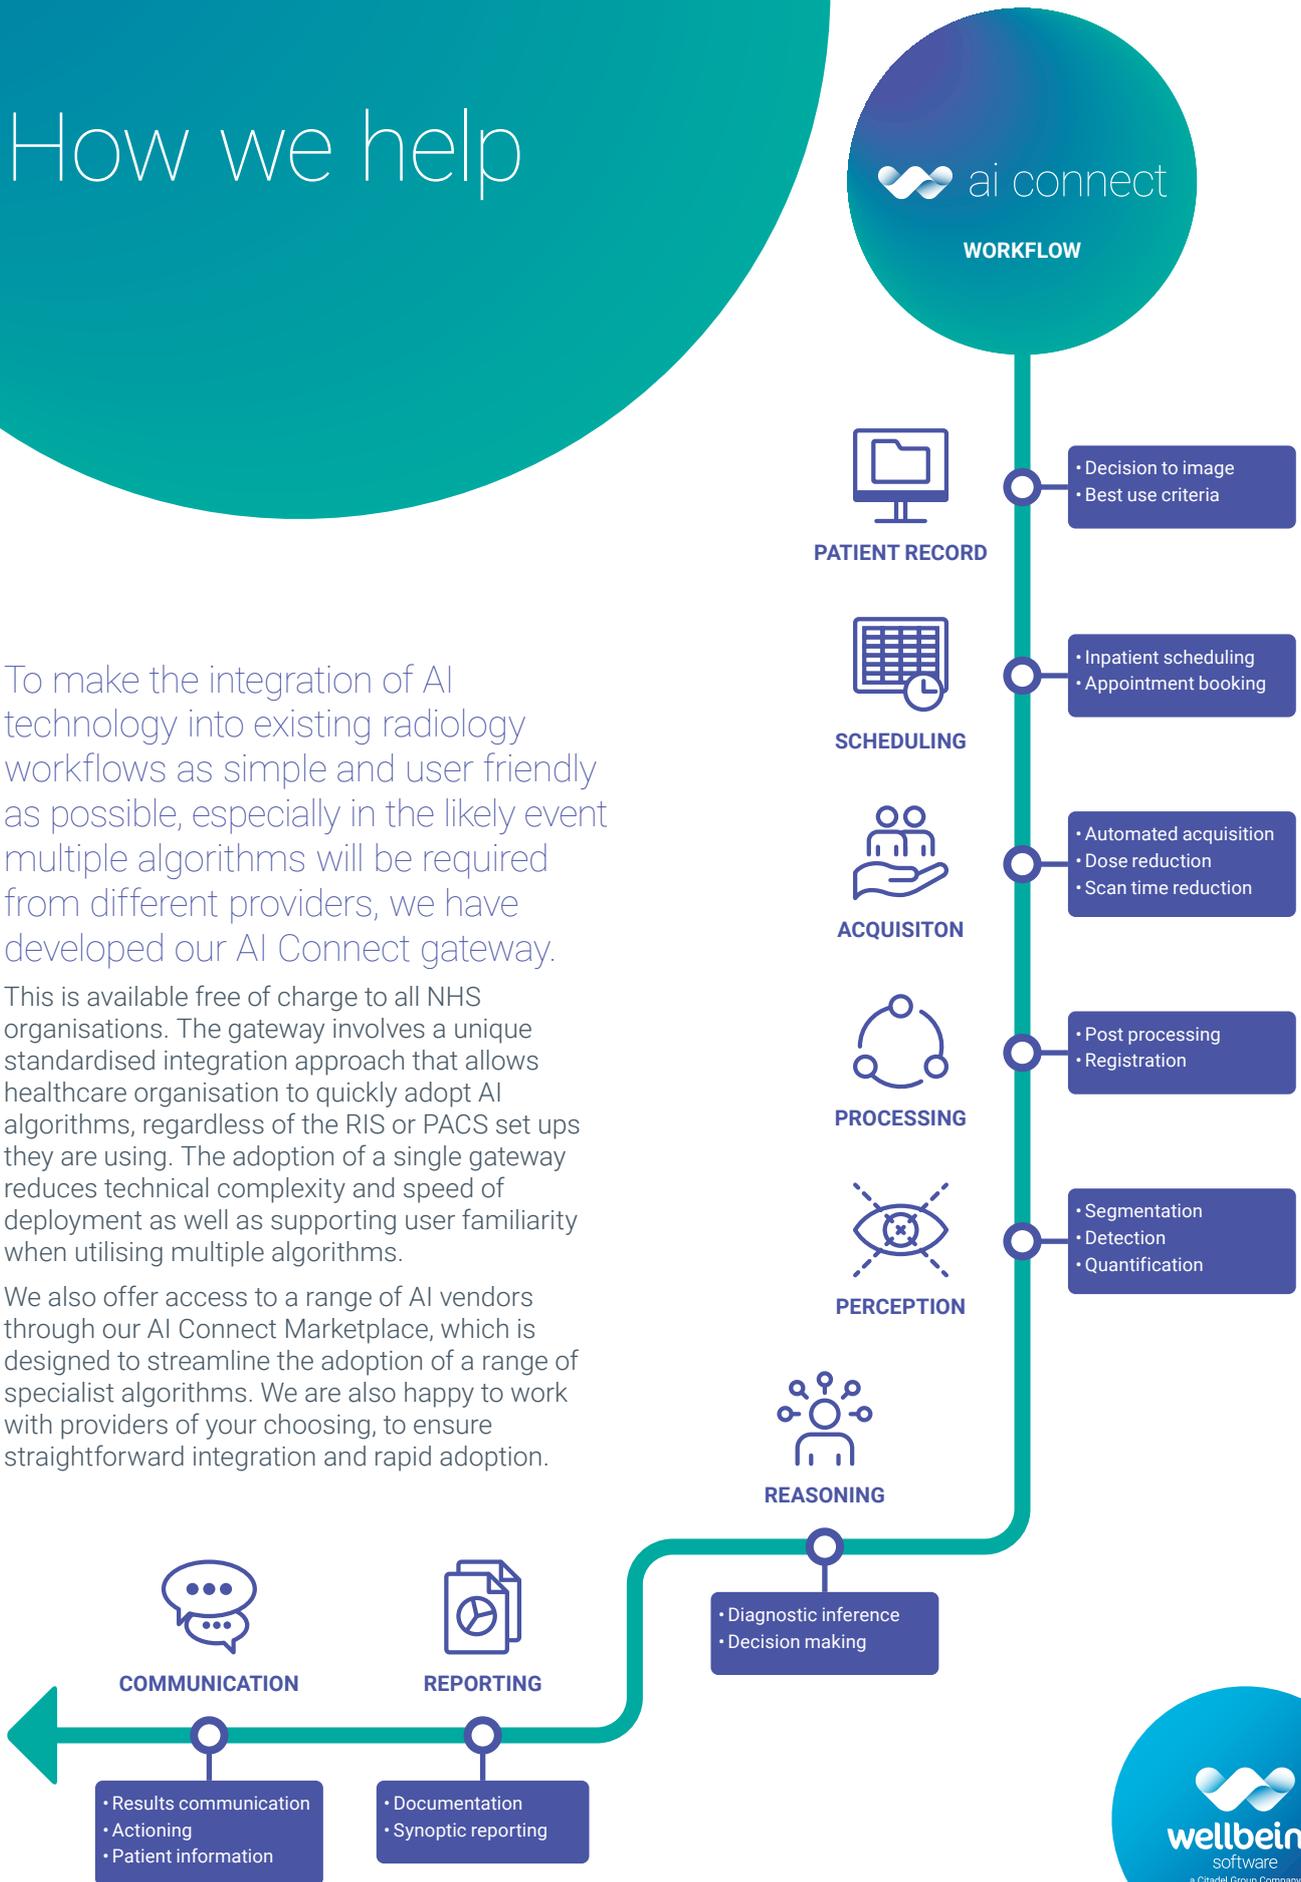

Provides a user-friendly experience when working with new AI technology, making its use intuitive and effective

How we help

To make the integration of AI technology into existing radiology workflows as simple and user friendly as possible, especially in the likely event multiple algorithms will be required from different providers, we have developed our AI Connect gateway.

This is available free of charge to all NHS organisations. The gateway involves a unique standardised integration approach that allows healthcare organisation to quickly adopt AI algorithms, regardless of the RIS or PACS set ups they are using. The adoption of a single gateway reduces technical complexity and speed of deployment as well as supporting user familiarity when utilising multiple algorithms.

We also offer access to a range of AI vendors through our AI Connect Marketplace, which is designed to streamline the adoption of a range of specialist algorithms. We are also happy to work with providers of your choosing, to ensure straightforward integration and rapid adoption.

The AI Connect Marketplace

introduce AI at your organisation?
Get in Touch!

Our AI Connect Marketplace provides a single point of reference and information for organisations looking to discover which radiology AI vendors and algorithms can support their clinical requirements.

The vendor neutral marketplace consists of AI providers who are already working in partnership with Wellbeing Software and use our AI Connect gateway. This enables the quick and consistent roll-out and use of multiple AI applications from multiple providers.

We work with all of our AI Connect Marketplace partners during and after the roll-out of their chosen AI technology too, ensuring the adoption process is managed effectively and can be scaled to include multiple algorithms and providers.
